Assembling Your Team

What if an employee is a bad fit?

Can you terminate them?

Statutes, regulations and court cases establish what you can and cannot do in this process.

Financially painful and politically distasteful remedies if you stray beyond the rules.

The Rules:

- are constantly changing
- are far from intuitive
- often very different and more restrictive
than in the private sector

How do you deal with such a problem employee without getting sued?

Fail to play within these rules ... the courts can meet out painful and politically distasteful remedies.

Good team.

Good success.

Accomplishing great things.

Freedom of Speech?

... or Whistleblower?

Have to know and follow the rules ... or the courts can meet out painful and politically distasteful remedies.

BUT the Rules:

- keep changing
- aren't intuitive
- are totally different
and more restrictive
than in the private sector

Litigation ...

commonly arises out of:

Premises, or

Operations

The general rule of liability:
if you are negligent you will be held liable

BUT, in many cases,
... if you play your cards right ...
you may be personally immune from suit due to a concept known as

Discretionary Immunity

Combine good decision making discipline with sound risk management practices ... reduce your vulnerability to litigation and loss.
